[1] Explanatory notes:
a) This letter is not a confirmation or certification of the marital status of a person. It is not intended for the purpose of determining the legal capacity of a person to marry in Singapore or elsewhere.
b) The search will cover records of civil marriages that are registered in Singapore from 15 September 1961 onwards.
c) Marriages conducted 14 days prior to the date of this search may not have been updated in the register.
d) The register contains only data recorded at the point the marriage is registered. The data is not updated to reflect any changes in the party's details or marital status. Thus, if a party changes his or her name by deed poll, or acquires new identity numbers, or his/her marriage is dissolved, or he/she is widowed etc., this will not be reflected in the search results on the register.
e) Where result shows 'No record is found'
• This means that there is no record of marriage matching the information entered as the search criteria.
• It does not necessarily mean that the person is unmarried. He/she may already be validly married under the law of another country.
f) Where result shows 'Record is found'
• It does not necessarily mean that a person is still married. He/she may be divorced/widowed or have had his/her marriage annulled.
